

Generate timely prevalence estimates of chronic disease measures at national and local levels for informing policies, monitoring trends, planning programs, and evaluating outcomes to improve the health of the population.

